TROOP TRAIN OVER A RAVINE.

30 KILLED AND 40 INJURED IN NICE
DISASTER.

A terrible accident occurred recently to an electric train running along the light railway between Grasse and Nice. The train consisted of three passenger cars in addition to the tractor, and was crowded with soldiers belonging to regiments of Chasseurs Alpins, who were going to Nice to arrange for billets. There were also several civilians.

Many of the soldiers were travelling on the footboard, as there was no room for them inside.
The driver, a young man who had been only a fortnight on the service, was singing at increased speed in order to catch up a delay of ten minutes. It was raining heavily, and the rails were slippery.

Over three parts of the journey had been accomplished, and the train was approaching a viaduct crossing a ravine at a height of 40 feet. It is a deserted spot, and there is no habitation within a radius of a mile.
Just before the line reaches the viaduct
there is an incline. The driver put on the mechanical brakes, but they refused to act on the slippery rails. He then reversed
the motors.

The train reached the viaduct, but the shock resulting from the sudden change in speed caused the couplings to break between the tractor and the first car. The tractor left the rails and fell on its side athwart the permanent way. The three cars struck the obstacle and pitched headlong into the ravine. The driver and guard jumped and saved their lives.

It was a long time before help came and it was difficult to organize the work of rescue. Firemen from Nice and soldiers of the 24th and 27th Regiments were brought with all possible speed, but they had to make their way down the ravine by a slippery circuitous path.

All night long the work of rescue continued by torchlight. Some wonderful escapes are reported. Dr. Alberti of Nice, and his family were in the first car. They all jumped off before the car reached the obstacle, and were able to make their way down the ravine and help the victims.

Twenty bodies have been recovered, and others are still embedded in the mud.
The number of injured is over forty.
The majority of the killed are soldiers.

OPIMUM BURNING IN PEKING.

Recently the 6th monthly opium burning was held at the Third District
Primary Court in Peking. General Li Chang, President of the National Prohibition Union, and Rev. M. W.
Tawing, secretary of the International Bureau, were invited to be present.
A fire was made in the street in front of the court entrance and quite a quantity of pipes, lamps, jars containing prepared opium, knives, trimmers,
and other smoking utensils, together with several jugs of opium, were consumed in the flames. This represents the seizures during the past month in the third district of Peking. There were some very fine pipes, but no tin of them, however, were from the power smokers as it was explained that it was very difficult to discover the wealthy opium smoker. On examination of the list of the fine pipes and it was discovered that out of the opium smokers, 16,000 were using their smoking outfit, had to pay $10.00. Some, however, were only one dollar, but others were as high as $70, and one was $250 and another was $700. These fines are sent to the Board of Finance. The fine of $700 was paid by a very rich man, who had entered a complaint against some one for stealing in his house. When the matter came to be investigated by the Court his opium smoking outfit was also discovered and so he had to pay for his secret habit. In these wealthy homes they frequently have large quantities of opium hidden away, and it is very hard for the police to discover it unless some case like this comes up.

'Yet another "Who's Who" and this

that the East has now become Western

THE COUNTY COURTS.

LAW as an Aid to the Recovery of Debts.

A return for last year of county court proceedings in England and Wales shows that the courts entering the largest and smallest number of plaintiffs are Birmingham and Rothbury, respectively. The numbers entered in 1912 being 32,367 and 31 plaintiffs. The judgments given were—For plaintiff by consent of admission 308,212; for plaintiff by default (County Court Act, 1888, or Bills of Exchange Act), 80,818; non-suits 1,221; and for defendant, 6,313. The number of judgment summonses issued was 380,079, and the number of such cases heard was 240,228. Warrants of commitment were issued in 142,437 cases, and 3,820 debtors were imprisoned. Executions against goods numbered 228,191, and there were 2,761 sales. The aggregate amount for which plaintiffs were entered was £3,324,853. The gross total amount of moneys received to the credit of suitors was £2,716,301.

The return gives the statistics for the City of London County Court separately from those in the provinces. IDEAL CITIES.

American Commission's Findings After Touring Europe.

The members of the American Civic Commission have sailed for New York after completing a tour of the principal garden cities and suburbs on the Continent and in London. Mr. Richard B. Watrous, the secretary of the Commission, gave his impressions of the tour to a Press representative. "The Commission," he said, "will make three main recommendations. We shall urge:—(1) The establishment in every city of a town-planning department, with competent engineers and draughtsmen, who will try to foresee the town's needs and developments fifty years hence. (2) The establishment of a municipal housing system on the lines of that lately instituted in London, where small, comfortable, sanitary houses, with closed-in gardens, and at cheap rents, and with good car facilities, have been shown to be a commercial proposition. (3) Cleaner cities, because we believe cleanliness means good health and happiness.

"The Commission," continued Mr. Watrous, "left the United States two months ago to study the question of town-planning in regard to the future growth of cities, and also matters relating to traffic, railways, street lighting, and general administration. We visited Hamburg, Berlin, Dresden, Nuremberg, Munich, Frankfurt, Düsseldorf, Brussels, Paris, and London. We found the chief characteristics of the German cities to be magnificent town-planning systems scientifically directed towards the city's development with a view to the citizen's requirements a century hence. Moreover, their habitually careful administration, entirely freed from politics, tended to give the cities absolutely clean streets, as well as prevent a waste of the cities' money. In Paris, the wide streets, with fine vistas, greatly impressed us, but this system has been voted impossible from the point of view of the average American city. "We were greatly struck by London, by its wonderful cleanliness, considering the size of the city. But this is overlaid by the magnificent system of garden suburbs which have up-grown, and where the inhabitants, a few miles from the Metropolis, are able to enjoy the advantages of fine air and splendid gardens. Above all, we regarded the Tottenham estate of the London County Council. Here, for 12s. a week, a man is able to get a six-roomed house, with bathroom, washhouse and garden, within six miles of the centre of the city. I believe this plan will be available in a number of American cities. Our report will go fully into the financial details, and I believe we shall be able to show that the scheme is entirely practicable."

Couples who are contemplating matrimony are in a dilemma at High Wycombe, Buckinghamshire, on account of the death of a woman. The Council, resolved upon the erection of a death house.

Two yachting men, Mr. E. Walker Clark and Mr. George M. Proctor, are endeavouring to form a syndicate to build a yacht to compete for the honour of becoming the defender of the America Cup, says Reuter from Newport, Rhode Island.

It is a business that can be carried on from home.

THE REAL CECIL RHODES.

Mr. Le Sueur, one of Cecil Rhodes's many private secretaries, has written an intensely interesting character sketch of the great Empire-maker—a man of great qualities and great limitations—determined, yet not supercilious; dogged, yet intensely kind-hearted; clear-headed, and yet the victim of many a puny swindler; always an intensely whole-hearted patriot; a gentleman; and yet something of an intriguer.

Rhodes was no respecter of persons. Writing of his famous interview with the German Emperor, Mr. Le Sueur relates:—

"They had been conversing for quite a long time, the Kaiser being much interested, when Rhodes glanced at a clock and got up, and, instead of waiting to be dismissed, he Court etiquette demanded, he held out his hand to the Emperor, to the latter's amusement, and said, 'Well, good-bye; I've got to go now, as I have some people coming to dinner.'"

He bluffed Barney Barnato (to be stuffed in his turn by the slim Barnato brothers after Barney's death), and at board meetings he was the one director who mattered.

"He would walk in late to a meeting of the De Beers' Directors, and the minutes of the last meeting having hardly been read, he would start on the agenda and run through them, giving his own views on anything like this: 'Of course, what we have got to do here is so and so; I think we are all agreed about that. Just now that in the minutes (to the secretary as proposed and carried), and now about so and so, and the same with regard to the rest. That's all for this morning. I think, he would add, and walk out, leaving his colleagues thinking over resolutions and amendments they intended to bring forward."

Mr. Le Sueur claims that Rhodes was a drunkard.

"He liked his champagne in a tumbler, and at lunch or dinner had a habit of tossing off the glass absent-mindedly. After meals he would have his favourite Russian kummel, of which he would often have five or six liqueur glasses in the course of after-dinner conversation."

"His system required stimulants, and he was fond of a mixture of champagne and stout in the forenoon, but as a rule, he drank only with his meals, and rarely not to an extent to incapacitate him."

To those who do not know the conditions under which we live in Africa, the amount consumed by him, might seem large, but he had a horror of the "nipping" habit, and it is absurd to accuse him of being a drunkard."

He smoked cigarettes in the Labouchere manner, and he was a great eater.

Rhodes was a valiant trencherman—once might almost call him a gross feeder. On the yield he liked getting the joint in front of him, and cutting off great hunks of meat; and at home at Groote Schuur he would get up and go to a side-table, carve for himself, and carry over to his plate on his fork what he carved. When making a voyage, he always sent a cow on board in order to have fresh milk, and also a crate with a couple of dozen laying hens to provide fresh eggs, and these were killed during the voyage."

His interest in books was very slight. He was fond of Mr. Rudyard Kipling, because, "he writes such charming letters."

Perhaps the most characteristic story in the book is the account of how he engaged a private secretary.

"Harry Palk first attracted Rhodes by his command of language. Palk was an officer on one of the Union-Castle steamers, and the boat conveying Rhodes was a long time in getting alongside, and talk was at the head of the gangway."

He inquired with much profanity why the ship was kept waiting. He received a reply in tones of awe that the boat had been ordered for Mr. Rhodes. Palk then stepped up with a string of expletives that he did not care a hang for who it was, but that the ship was to be kept for no one.

"Rhodes was highly interested in this emphatic young man, and so he became one of the 'bodyguard.' He sent him to say with Mr. W. T. Stead, who chose literature for him, saw to his taking exercise (rowing on the Thames chiefly), and saw that he learned shorthand. He joined Rhodes as private secretary and accompanied him to Rhodesia, before leaving, however, he married, and at Salisbury one day he told Rhodes that he had to go down country, as his wife was about to give birth to a child. Rhodes was extremely annoyed, and really never forgave Palk."

In after-years, he said, speaking of him, "Imagine his leaving me alone at Salisbury with no one to do my letters, just because his wife was going to have a baby!"

THE ALEXANDRA CAFE Cannot Beaten, if Equalled, For Breakfast, Confectionery, Meals with Wine

More than two miles a minute is the own speed of a motor-car, the large

most powerful over built, with which attempt will be made to lower some of the world's records at Brooklands track.

Up to the present it has been considered dangerous to allow this vehicle, which is a 300-h.p. Fiat racer, to go at its maximum speed. None of the existing tracks is really large enough for it, and in a test on wet sand it has traveled at the rate of 120 miles per hour.

It is believed that if a driver had daring enough to let the car cut to its full speed would reach 180 miles per hour.

Such a daring driver has been found in the present owner of the car, M. Bostak, a rich Russian motorist, who has engaged M. Duryu, the famous racing motorist, to drive it at Brooklands. M. Duryu will probably attempt to lower the present record of 120 miles per hour.

Really, the Brooklands track is a hell for such a car," M. Baker, of the Automobile Company, told a press representative.

"I should not care to drive it at anything like its full speed there myself," M. Duryu is willing to take it, he went on, to see some sensation "making."

WAR FOR WAR'S SAKE

growing hatred of the masses to war, the economic impossibility of war, the cultural bonds between nations. When Germans read Viscount Haldane's view of the growth of international "Stitching," they—though the word is there—comment sadly and cynically, and point to the result of King Ferdinand's Christian League, to the result (in Manchuria) of the Czar's peace professions, and to the fact that the European Powers are never solid except when, as during the Balkan quarrel, they happen to be "helpless." In Germany there is no peace movement. That fact is lost sight of because also in Germany there is less excitement, hysterical Jingism than elsewhere. The mass of the nation is indifferent to ideological motives; and it is ready for any doctrine, Chauvinist or other, which promises material gain.

INCREASED CHAUVINISM

Germans, like other nations, do not realise that they are Chauvinists. They realise it all the less owing to the relative calmness of manner of their Chauvinist agitation. Nevertheless, Professor Nippold admits that "There is no doubt whatever that Chauvinism in Germany, especially in the last two years, has been tremendously increased." He says that many complain that the "Folk-Soul" in this matter has radically changed—for the worse; and that he himself, on returning to Germany after many years spent abroad was amazed to find the change. The idealisation of war, not international "Stitching," says this good authority, is the feature of German civilisation "a pronounced unity to foreigners, combined with a one-sided glorification of war, and together with that a war propaganda of a kind which a few years ago one could not have conceived." And this is not a frivolous street agitation. "It is a complete, thorough system, which is conscious of its aim, which has directly as its object the winning of the people, whether through distortions of facts or vicious calumnies; which also has the desire to win the Government for Chauvinist aims. These aims are war, 'preventive war,' finally aggressive war." Der Krieg selbst ist ihnen die Hauptsache—"war itself is the main thing," independently of its origin or its objects. This propaganda has won very large classes of the population. But first it has won the "gebildete Stände"—the educated classes—and of these most of all, says Herr Nippold, it is the able younger historians who take most pride in a Jingist conception of history and progress. "As a result, probably no country has a population which talks so much of war as does Germany." As a result of the eternal war-talk in Germany one has the feeling of living in a war-pregnant atmosphere.

DIPLOMATIC RESPONSIBILITY

Professor Nippold acquiesces the Government of any material share of responsibility. He accepts the view of the late Lord Salisbury (adopted by Dr. von Bismarck-Holweg in a Reichstag speech this year) that it is the peoples and not the governments which nowadays make wars; and he considers recent international history proof that modern diplomats work sedulously for peace. He even cites with approval the latest Austrian attempt to suppress newspaper Jingism. This is the clause in the new Criminal Code project making punishable with a year's imprisonment, or 4,000 kronen fine, anyone who prints "untrue or distorted news through which relations with a foreign state are endangered." This view of Professor Nippold is not at all taken by his critics, who answer that while diplomats do not endanger peace, as journalists do, by making violent charges in intemperate language, it is the diplomats, nevertheless, who plunge the soil on which Chauvinist journalists work. A good example is the late Herr Kiderlen Waackert's Agadir coup. This caused an Anglo-German newspaper feud which made relations very bad, but Herr Kiderlen Waackert was not driven by Chauvinist outsiders to send his warship to Agadir; indeed, no one foresaw his move, or any other dangerous move, until it was officially announced. And the same is true of the Balkan war, and of all the complications. This war with Turkey was resolved upon by a handful of diplomats. There was no popular agitation; and indeed the Gueschoff Cabinet itself had come to power a few months before with a programme of friendship with Turkey. The war between the victors was caused by Dr. Danell, helped by a few generals; and the Austro-Russian risk of war over Serbia was caused by Count Berchtold raising a question about which the mass of Austrian opinion was more than indifferent.

A PACIFIST GOVERNMENT

The strong German Chauvinism which is now raging is quite impossible to move the Imperial Government into a warlike enterprise; and even the pacifist Professor Nippold finds his Government pacifist enough. However, there is no guarantee that the pacifist Government, like the undoubtedly pacifist Kaiser-Waackert, may not take some other risky step and without wanting war may yet be backed by the agitators whom Nippold espouses, effectually being it on. The agitators are extremely strong. They have among them nearly every retired general who writes or speaks, the Pan-German League, Navy League, and Defence League, all of which are far stronger than any British patriotic associations; they have the educated head of the National-Liberal party, and a very strong press. The press is the most powerful factor, and no pacifist clause against falsifying news would check it. It works not with false news and rumours, but with extremely well-written, well-informed articles inspired by a cynical but truthful political philosophy, and calculated to appeal to men of balance. German Chauvinist literature is the only Chauvinist literature in any language which does not yield shocks and amusement to men of discrimination. The writings of Bernhardi, Reventlow, Class, and Hesse are cases in point. Compared with these writings and with the Chauvinist appeals of the "Deutsche Tages-Zeitung" the highly-coloured propaganda of French Chauvinism and British Jingism are feeble and pitiful. And that fact accords with Professor Nippold's diagnosis that Chauvinism in Germany is a system "conscious of its aim," and particularly in favour with the "educated classes" and with able young historians.—Birmingham Post.

HYPNOTIC CURE FOR BLINDNESS

Remarkable Claims.

Mr. Alexander Erskine has made a remarkable appeal to the Royal Normal College, London, for the blind in a letter which he has sent to Sir F. J. Campbell, the principal of that institution, offering his services with a view to restoring sight to some of the blind inmates of the college. In his letter Mr. Erskine calls attention to the two cures which he claims to have effected in cases of blindness.

"I appeal to you," he writes, "to consider these cases with an impartial mind. Briefly, what I would like you to do is to let me come to the college one day and pick out a dozen or so of your pupils so that I can do all I can, in my spare hours, to give them their sight. I do most earnestly ask you to let me see what I can do. I am anxious to give my services to some similar institution should you not think it advisable to let me try."

Mr. Erskine, the son of the late, claims to be a cousin of the Earl of Mar and Kellie. For the past fifteen years he has practised as an expert in hypnotism.

In May last, it is claimed, he restored the sight of the left eye of Miss Violet Winter, a young music-hall artist, who lost the sight of that eye after a blow on the head received in an accident. Two months afterwards a more remarkable cure was claimed in the case of Gertrude Yates, a nine-year-old girl living at Nunhead. She was born blind, and was taken to Mr. Erskine by Miss Gardner, a local municipal inspector.

"Those two cases," said Mr. Erskine, "have attracted so much attention among medical men and scientists in general that I decided to appeal to the Royal Normal College in the way I have done. If sight can be restored to a child born blind, then I maintain that there must be many more cases of the same condition that are amenable to hypnotic treatment."

Gertrude Yates, who lives in Bassett-road, Nunhead, is the daughter of a poor and invalid father. Her forehead bears scars of wounds she received by falling when groping about the house before her sight was restored. She told a press representative that when she was able to see she was surprised at the appearance of her mother and father, although she could not express in words what she imagined them to be like.

"There is nobody on earth," said Mr. Yates, "who can dispute the fact that my little girl was born blind, and that she was cured by Mr. Erskine. When she was two years old we took her to St. Thomas' Hospital. Take her home, they said, 'we can do nothing for her.'"

"Two months ago, however, she was taken to Mr. Erskine by Miss Gardner, who is connected with the Camberwell Guardians; and it is impossible to explain how grateful we are. My little girl, who had learned to read Braille books, is now learning the ordinary alphabet. Since her sight has been restored her health has been better, and she is, of course, happier."

Miss Violet Winter declares that her left eye still possesses its sight. "It seems to improve each month," she said, "and I can see and read with it almost as well as I can with my other eye."

Dr. Parkin, organising secretary of the Rhodes Scholarship Trust, has reached Quebec to receive the examinations in Canada and the United States in connection with the scholarships, which take place in the middle of October in every State and in Canada.
